HOUSE BATTLE LOOMING OVER BAN ON STRIKES

Mary Norton Urges Solons To Deal Only With Mine Strike

COMMITTEES AT ODDS

Unit Bitterly Opposed By Unions May Get Measure For Action

WASHINGTON, May 6—House pro-labor leaders today planned a battle to modify the Connally plant seizure bill, which passed the senate late yesterday by a vote of 63 to 16.

Chairman Mary T. Norton (D) N. J., of the labor committee, indicated that she would try to restrict the bill to dealing with the mine strike precipitated by President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers.

The Connally bill, broadened in the final stages of senate voting, gives:

1. The President right to seize factories or mines in event of threatened strikes, thus confirming his seizure of the coal mines.
2. The War Labor Board power to subpoena, so that John L. Lewis can be forced to appear or any other person may be forced to testify.
3. The War Labor Board power to fix wages in plants seized by government.

Battle Looms

The first house battle was to be between the labor committee, dominated by pro-labor members, and the judiciary committee, which has reported bills bitterly opposed by organized labor. Mrs. Norton said she would ask that the bill be sent to her committee. Some house members, it was learned, planned to broaden the bill to ban strikes for the duration, and outlaw the closed shop on government projects.

"We can only hope to get this bill," said Rep. Norton.

"I think it is very unwise to muddy the waters at this time," said Mrs. Norton when asked what she thought the house would do with the bill. "If we could write a bill that would affect John L. Lewis only, that would be one thing. But this bill applies to all labor and all unions which are observing their promise not to strike. These matters should be handled by the WLB."

Sumners Seeks Bill

Rep. Sumners (D) Tex., chairman of the judiciary committee, has indicated that he will fight to have the bill brought before his group.

In addition, the house has almost a dozen other anti-labor bills, including the Worley measure, a (Continued on Page Four)

WLB Resumes Hearings As Ickes Plans To Keep Coal Mines Operating

WASHINGTON, May 6—The War Labor Board, admitting that President Roosevelt's hold-the-line order virtually stripped it of power, today appealed to the White House for authority to scrap its own "Little Steel Formula" and establish wage controls on the basis of prevailing "going rates" of pay.

The appeal was made, it was learned, in a statement sent by the WLB to the White House offices of James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director and so-called "assistant president of the home front."

The WLB in its declaration suggested that the new "going rate" be set by obtaining the most frequently paid wage scale in an industrial area and fixing it as the ceiling up to which all pay could be brought.

Unwritten and unexpressed in the appeal to Byrnes were the fears of the board that the nation faced a new wave of strikes. In this connection, labor members of the WLB have warned the board that there is widespread unrest among the rank-and-file of organized workers over present pay scales and they believe that living costs have not been controlled as rigidly as the Roosevelt administration promised.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, May 6—As the War Labor Board resumed its attempt today to settle the wage differences between the United Mine Workers and soft coal operators, John L. Lewis kept good his word and failed to appear.

The hearing opened with all parties represented except Lewis and his miners.

WASHINGTON, May 6—The War Labor Board today resumed its hearings in the wage controversy between John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers and the nation's coal operators as Secretary of the Interior Ickes took action to keep war production moving should the miners again walk out of the pits.

Whether Lewis would appear or send representatives to the hearing remained a matter of speculation.

The WLB was empowered to proceed to make findings in the wage dispute whether the mine workers sent representatives or not.

Lewis still held the threat of a general coal strike over the country. The 15-day truce he called to end a general walkout in the mines Tuesday will expire in two weeks and unless Lewis gains substantial wage increases he is expected to allow the miners to become idle again.

May Divert Coal

Meanwhile, Ickes who took over operation of the mines for the government, issued an order giving him broad power to force any coal mine or distributor to divert coal from regular customers in order to fill the emergency needs of war plants and essential civilian activity.

Under the order through which Ickes hopes to prevent vital war plants from closing because of lack of coal, the new miners' boss may obtain coal from any source "he finds appropriate" for the use (Continued on Page Four)

GANGLAND GUNS BLAZE AND TWO RACKETEERS DIE

CHICAGO, May 6—Danny Stanton, laborer racketeer and former Al Capone hoodlum, and a companion, Louis Dorman, were shot to death early today in a smoothly-executed assassination reminiscent of the dramatic gangland murders of the prohibition era.

Two other men were wounded as shotguns roared in a southside Chicago tavern shortly after midnight.

They are Louis (Cy) Shapiro and Big Mouth Charles O'Brodorff, the latter a known associate of Stanton.

The murders, as reconstructed by police, were planned with all the care and executed with all the precision that once marked the gangland wars when Capone held sway for years by killing off his rivals.

Stanton, lately known as Chicago's No. 1 public enemy, was shot down by gunmen as he stood at the bar of the 6500 club owned by Harry Freyner sipping beer with Dorman and two or three other persons, O'Brodorff presumably among them.

A few moments later, Police Supervisor Andrew Barry was told, O'Brodorff was seen running from the place, his face covered with streaming blood.

Stanton's assassins entered through a side door and their presence was not noted until their shotguns began blasting.

Other gang members were reported stationed at the front door, concealed in the space between the outer and inner doors. These opened fire on Shapiro when he sought to escape that way, felling him with shotgun slugs in the shoulder and arm.

DRAFT CHIEFS PREPARING TO CALL FATHERS

Employers Of Essential Workers Advised To File Names

MUST ASK DEFERMENT

Local Boards Receive Instructions On Order Of Call

WASHINGTON, May 6—Selective service headquarters today began preparing for the drafting of fathers which is expected to start generally about August 1.

Employers engaged in war production or in activities essential to support of the war effort were advised to file with local boards the names of all draft registrants in their employ who maintain bona fide homes with children less than 18 years of age, born on or before September 14, 1942.

It was pointed out that by doing this, the boards will be advised of the registrant's employment in an essential activity and the employer will receive notice when boards begin reclassifying fathers from 3-A to make them available for military service.

Exemption Opposed

This step was taken after Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, told the senate military affairs committee that induction of men with children will begin in four months or earlier if present calls are to be met. Hershey expressed his opposition to legislation exempting fathers from the draft and prohibiting draft deferment of government workers.

Officials said that the work of local boards preparing to draft fathers will be simplified by possession of information on what employes may be eligible for occupational deferment. Such employes previously had been segregated from others deferred for dependency and placed in class 3-B which was recently abolished.

May Change Class

For such employes to receive continued deferment their employers will have to file requests that they be placed in class 2-A or 2-B.

Meanwhile, selective service officials said that the only fathers now being inducted are those engaged in activities or occupations on the War Manpower Commission's non-deferrable list, farm workers who, without permission from their local board, leave essential agriculture jobs for which they have been deferred (Continued on Page Four)

10 MINERS DIE, 18 ESCAPE IN SOUTHERN BLAST

LAFOLLETTE, Tenn., May 6—The bodies of 10 miners found in the blast-torn shafts of the Etna Coal and Coke Co. mine were identified today shortly after 18 other workers, for whom all hope had been abandoned, walked to safety from the gas-filled pit.

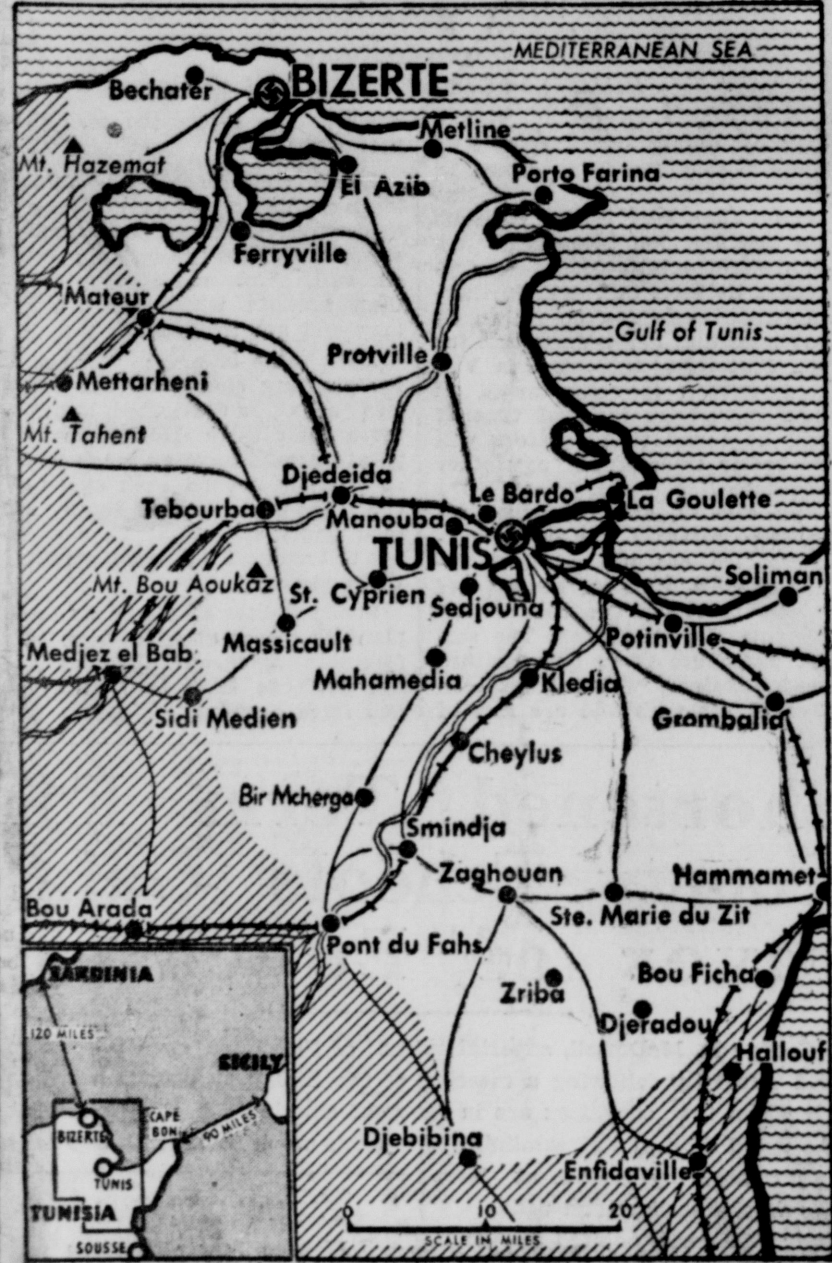

Entombed for seven hours after a terrific blast and fire 1,500 feet from the entrance of the mine, the 18 miners found temporary safety away from the gaseous fumes and then made their way to the opening as huge suction pumps drew out the fouled air from the shafts.

Rescue workers and hundreds of milling spectators, many of them relatives of the trapped miners, jammed the mine entrance as the bodies of the 10 dead men were brought to the surface.

Bodies of two of the miners who had attempted to make their way to the mine opening immediately following the blast were found near the entrance, only 400 feet from their goal, rescue workers said.

Believed to have been caused by coal dust or a gas pocket, the blast rocked the mine late yesterday. Fire burst out almost immediately, preventing rescue crews from entering the pit.

Allies Drive Closer To Goals

BRITISH troops Thursday seized control of Mt. Bou Aoukaz in their eastern drive from the Medjez-el-Bab sector as Americans drove troops of Von Arnim from part of an "important feature" presumably Mt. Achkel south of Lake Achkel. The British advance removed the last hill barrier to Tunis. Inset map shows the embattled area in relation to future battlefronts.

Receiving Medal More Trying Than Fighting Japs, Marine Declares

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6—Wearing a brand new Navy Cross, Marine Corporal William F. Barnes of Philadelphia, 23-year-old Guadalcanal veteran, today said he was more nervous when he received the medal than when he lay under a hail of Jap fire in the battle of Bloody Hill.

For his heroic role in that battle, Major General William P. Upshur, commanding general of the Marine Corps Department of the Pacific, presented the award to the young mortar gunner at ceremonies in San Francisco.

FOOD STRIKERS DECIDE TO EAT AFTER 82 DAYS

NEW YORK, May 6—An eighty-two day "hunger strike" of two conscientious objectors to war has been terminated, it was announced today by Dr. Evan W. Thomas, chairman of the War Resisters League.

The two hunger strikers were Stanley Murphy and Lewis Krauczyk, both members of the War Resisters League. They are serving sentences in the federal prison in Danbury, Conn., and began their fast February 12. Prison physicians have been feeding the "resisters" by compulsory methods and both are in fair health, it was said. Thomas said the men quit their fast because "their aims had been achieved."

WAR WORKERS SPEND BIG PAY FOR DIAMONDS

CHICAGO, May 6—With the flood of wartime prosperity, workers who used to be in the lower income brackets now are going for diamonds in a big way. Charles T. Michaels, president of the American National Retail Jewelers Association, said today.

He told a convention of the Illinois Retail Jewelers Association: "There are workers who have never made more than $20 a week in their married life. Suddenly they are drawing $80 to $100. They or their womenfolk have yearned for diamonds all their lives. Well, they're getting them now, and who can blame them?"

Japs Suffer Big Losses From Subs

Tokyo Boast Of Sinking U. S. Ships Branded As "Flat Lie"

A SOUTH PACIFIC BASE, May 6—South Pacific naval headquarters announced today that United States submarines are inflicting tremendous losses on Japanese shipping.

Japan's recent boast of having sunk 50,000 tons of American shipping carrying arms, munitions and supplies in nine days at the same time was branded "a flat lie."

Regarding the Jap claim, re-broadcast by the Berlin radio, headquarters said that the Nipponese have not sunk that much shipping in the last three months.

They have been conducting an active submarine campaign for some time but it has proved "profitless," it was said.

The Japs, it was explained, apparently have adopted the Nazi tactics of making wild claims so as to bolster homefront morale since they have been suffering tremendous shipping losses themselves.

Figures on the tonnage of Jap shipping sunk were not revealed, but it was said that an announcement probably will come from Washington soon and will prove "very interesting."

It was pointed out that our subs are proving a very vital factor in the war.

In reply to a query on whether the Japs are annoying our commercial ships in this area it was said that they have been "pecking away" at them, but not too seriously. This is because the Nipponese have been using their subs mostly in the combat zone.

A spokesman said that it had not been observed that the Jap subs are operating in "wolf packs" like the German U-boats in the Atlantic.

The spokesman stated also that no Jap planes had sunk any allied ships in this area.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

The chairman of a draft board in New Jersey posted the names of every man who had been deferred by his board and the reason why.

Well, why not? It's certainly in the public interest to know the grounds on which some of these fine young Hercules have been exempted while their more anemic neighbors have been thrust into uniform.

A man who has been deferred by reason of his occupation, his health or because of dependency has no cause to be ashamed of it or to protest the posting of his name and the cause of his deferment.

The protests will come from the frauds and the fakes—the draft dodgers who are hiding behind some flimsy pretext which won't bear the light of publicity.

You can reach out in almost any direction in any community in the country and touch some lad who hasn't as much claim to exemption from military service as his grandmother.

Tojo Predicts Hard Blows Against Allies, Answered By Bombs

By International News Service

American and British troops laid a foundation for the siege of Bizerte today with capture of new territory immediately surrounding the great Tunisian port. At the same time, Britain's First Army gained control of strategic Djebel Bou Aoukaz, the last hill barrier separating Allied armies east of Medjez-el-Bab from the plain country before Tunis.

American forces advancing from Mateur reached a point half-way to Ferryville, which placed them only six miles from this subsidiary garrison and naval base on the opposite side of Lake Bizerte from Bizerte itself.

Bizerte Siege Near

The decisive battle for Bizerte is now expected to develop swiftly. There is every indication Col. Gen. Dietloff Von Arnim's Nazi armies are to stand and fight in the outer perimeter of Bizerte's defenses extending from points north of Lake Achel through Ferryville to the immediate Mateur sector.

Von Arnim's determination in this regard was evinced yesterday by enemy counterattacks against Djebel Chinit and firm resistance offered to Allied thrusts from Axis emplacements on high ground four miles east and southeast of Mateur.

Allied preparations for the Bizerte siege included vast new aerial operations. Latest bombing attacks on Ferryville are believed to have virtually immobilized the docks and shipping facilities there, while Bizerte has suffered heavily as well.

Port Hard Hit

Reconnaissance photographs show conclusively the Bizerte harbor and naval base are so seriously damaged as the result of consistent bombings that unloading of Axis reinforcements is handicapped seriously.

According to French reports, Bizerte has been largely evacuated of civilians on Von Arnim's orders.

Meanwhile, front-line reports showed the majority of recent German prisoners are young men of 20 to 21 from the French province of Lorraine, forcibly inducted into uniform and only too happy to surrender. Many, according to one observer, are almost unable to wait to change over into French uniforms and fight for revenge against Germany.

PEACE OFFERS FROM HUNS GET RED RASPBERRY

LONDON, May 6—Indirect peace offers from Germany were reported today in a Moscow radio broadcast in the London Daily Mail.

"Hitler has offered peace to the western democracies if they abandon Russia and peace to the Soviet Union if it gives Germany a free hand in the west," the Moscow announcer said.

"Disgust and ridicule" greeted the proposals, which came from Axis dominated countries, the Russian announcer was quoted as saying. He said the Kremlin replied that the only possible peace terms were "unconditional surrender and destruction of the German armies."

A Reuters dispatch from Zurich quoted well informed Rome circles as saying Italy and Hungary flatly turned down Hitler's requests for more cannon fodder. Hungary was said to have replied it would send no more troops to the Russian front "because they are needed at home."

JUVENILE CRIME WAVE A MYTH, EXPERT CLAIMS

CHICAGO, May 6—The Jeremiahs who have been bewailing the growth of juvenile crime due to wartime conditions had their answer today from Wayne McMillen, professor of social administration at the University of Chicago.

Citing reports from the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U. S. Children's Bureau, Prof. McMillen said wartime conditions have brought nothing even remotely resembling a juvenile crime wave in this country. He said:

"If you could adjust the figures for crime increases in certain areas to the increases in population there, you might find the actual figures on crime much smaller, or even turned into decreases."

"Many believed what they feared instead of analyzing the facts."

First Army Storms Last Hill Barrier Before City Of Tunis

YANKS NEAR FERRYVILLE

Tojo Predicts Hard Blows Against Allies, Answered By Bombs

By International News Service
American and British troops laid a foundation for the siege of Bizerte today with capture of new territory immediately surrounding the great Tunisian port.

At the same time, Britain's First Army gained control of strategic Djebel Bou Aoukaz, the last hill barrier separating Allied armies east of Medjez-el-Bab from the plain country before Tunis.

American forces advancing from Mateur reached a point half-way to Ferryville, which placed them only six miles from this subsidiary garrison and naval base on the opposite side of Lake Bizerte from Bizerte itself.

Bizerte Siege Near

The decisive battle for Bizerte is now expected to develop swiftly. There is every indication Col. Gen. Dietloff Von Arnim's Nazi armies are to stand and fight in the outer perimeter of Bizerte's defenses extending from points north of Lake Achel through Ferryville to the immediate Mateur sector.

Von Arnim's determination in this regard was evinced yesterday by enemy counterattacks against Djebel Chinitli and firm resistance offered to Allied thrusts from Axis emplacements on high ground four miles east and southeast of Mateur.

Allied preparations for the Bizerte siege included vast new aerial operations. Latest bombing attacks on Ferryville are believed to have virtually immobilized the docks and shipping facilities there, while Bizerte has suffered heavily as well.

Port Hard Hit

Reconnaissance photographs show conclusively the Bizerte harbor and naval base are so seriously damaged as the result of consistent bombings that unloading of Axis reinforcements is handicapped seriously.

According to French reports, Bizerte has been largely evacuated of civilians on Von Arnim's orders. Meanwhile, front-line reports showed the majority of recent German prisoners are young men of 20 to 21 from the French province of Lorraine, forcibly inducted into uniform and only too happy to surrender. Many, according to one observer, are almost unable to wait to change over into French uniforms and fight for revenge against Germany.

PEACE OFFERS FROM HUNS GET RED RASPBERRY

LONDON, May 6—Indirect peace offers from Germany were reported today in a Moscow radio broadcast in the London Daily Mail.

"Hitler has offered peace to the western democracies if they abandon Russia and peace to the Soviet Union if it gives Germany a free hand in the west," the Moscow announcer said.

"Disgust and ridicule" greeted the proposals, which came from Axis dominated countries, the Russian announcer was quoted as saying. He said the Kremlin replied that the only possible peace terms were "unconditional surrender and destruction of the German armies."

A Reuters dispatch from Zurich quoted well informed Rome circles as saying Italy and Hungary flatly turned down Hitler's requests for more cannon fodder. Hungary was said to have replied it would send no more troops to the Russian front "because they are needed at home."

PARKING METERS TO BE PAID FOR BY JANUARY 1

George Crites Reports That 100 Devices Already Are City Property

MONEY STILL DUE ON 88

Council Gives Approval To Improvement Of Pleasant Street

Parking meters now serving Circleville will become the property of the city by next January 1, council was informed Wednesday evening by Councilman George L. Crites, who said that payment has been completed for the first 100 meters installed and that the rest will be paid off by the end of the year.

There are 188 meters operating in Circleville, and each month 75 percent of the money taken from them is paid to the Dual Parking Meter Co., Oklahoma City. Although the first 100 have been paid off 75 percent of the money taken from them is being paid to the company to speed payment on the remaining 88.

After next January 1 all revenues from the meters will be the city's.

To Improve Street Council put its approval on a move to improve Pleasant street, now in a bad state of repair, by instructing Solicitor Joe W. Adkins to prepare advertising which will ask for bids on a repair job.

Pay for special policemen was boosted 50 cents a night under an ordinance requested by Chief W. F. McCrady. Special officers who now get $3 for an eight hour shift will be paid $3.50.

Pay rate for common labor at the sewage disposal plant was boosted from 40 cents to 50 cents an hour.

A claim submitted by Miller M. Fissell, former traffic patrolman, for $300 for use of his motorcycle and other equipment was put into the hands of the laws and claims committee, comprised of Frank A. Lynch, who is now ill, Boyd Horn and W. E. Wallace.

Fissell Explains Claim

Mr. Fissell in a claim submitted Wednesday evening said that $300 is due him for 1940, 1941 and 1942 for use of his equipment on the traffic job. He said such an agreement was reached when he became an employee of the city, but that he had agreed to wait until the city's financial condition was improved.

The pay question has been before council for some time without action. Mr. Fissell's presentation of the claim is expected to result in early action.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon reported collections during April to total $403.55. Included were $6.55 in fines, $1 for a license and $396 in forfeited bonds. The $6.55 is from a state patrol case.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Potatoes Play Stellar Role in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY Released by Central Press Association

HOMAGE IS being paid to the humble potato this year. And more potatoes will be grown in Victory vegetable gardens this season than ever before. Reasons for this are that home gardeners figure that potato prices may skyrocket by next fall, and, furthermore, potatoes can be grown on sod land that has been turned for the first time. In fact, if a Victory garden is being made on land turned for the first time, it will be found that potatoes will do better than almost any other vegetable.

Be careful, however, when selecting potatoes for seed purposes. Do not use potatoes afflicted with scab, an example of which is shown in the accompanying Garden Graph. The safest procedure is to buy certified seed potatoes, which have been treated for scab and are free of disease. The better the seed the better the crop.

Select well formed and fairly large seed potatoes, as illustrated. Such potatoes should have stubby sprouts, for this type when planted will grow more vigorously than sprouts which are overly long and apt to be soft.

Each piece of potato when cut for planting should have one or two "eyes," as illustrated, but not more than three. Each piece of potato should have as much flesh as possible around each eye, for the plant lives on this supply of food while sprouting. Take care not to break off the young sprouts when planting.

Seed potatoes should be cut into planting pieces about a week before planting them. This gives the cut surfaces time to heal over and form a callus.

Shortened Term For County Schools Gains Favor of Educators

George D. McDowell, superintendent of Pickaway county schools, said Thursday following a meeting of the Pickaway county board of education that educators are in favor of starting school next Fall at the usual date and streamlining the year's work so that classes may be dismissed by May 5, at least two weeks earlier than usual.

Mr. McDowell pointed out that the calendar has not been approved yet, but that school men here are opposed to delaying the start of classes, believing that it would be better to have school start as usual and then dismiss earlier.

Under a tentative program, classes would begin September 6.

No school would be conducted on Saturday, but Christmas vacation would be reduced to only a few days. New Year's vacation would be eliminated because the event comes on a Saturday, and other vacations would either be eliminated or greatly reduced.

The calendar was to be discussed at length Thursday afternoon when superintendents gathered in the McDowell office for their May meeting.

are resigning, others are writing memos in a high state of emotion.

According to their heated charges, WSA is training thousands of apprentices for non-existent jobs, is holding these young draft-age men idle, and is conspiring to drive the maritime unions from the sea.

According to one confidential memo, written by pro-labor officials inside the War Shipping Administration, the Training Division has been overstaffed in a frantic effort to build a backlog of 10,000 men for maritime training, before the Army, Navy or draft boards can get their hands on them, largely to head off the unions.

The charge is that if the ships are manned with new men, they will be more tractable, and will follow the "service line" rather than the "labor line."

In broad outlines, the ruction is an expression of the mutual distrust existing between maritime unions and the Navy. The WSA training program is bringing thousands of new seamen into the industry who threaten to upset union domination.

In fact so many trainees have been brought in that thousands of them are cooling their heels, waiting for berths which cannot be provided, because sixty percent of all crews must be experienced men.

Meantime, pro-Union WSA officials claim that many trained and experienced seamen in other jobs are not being called to maritime service. They are union members.

"It is fairly clear," says one memo, "that the Training Division opposes the infusion into the Merchant Marine of anything but new blood of its own peculiar type, count and color. The question is, why?"

This indignant official answers the question as follows: "If it is because the independent character of the experienced American merchant seaman is subversive to the best interests of the American Merchant Marine, then the majority of the men who sail the ships today are right in suspecting that the government is building a reserve of more tractable men to drive them from the sea."

Note: When officer candidates finish training at the Maritime Schools at Ft. Trumbull, Conn., or Alameda, Cal., there is such a backlog of waiting officers that they are permitted, if not encouraged, to travel home at government expense for vacation.

forces in China, who is visiting in the United States.

But the "Fighting Tiger" almost fumed McKenzie by inquiring: "How's farming down home? I can't wait to get back to my plantation."

McKenzie replied that he had just returned from Louisiana, that farmers in his district were doing "very well" considering the shortage of labor and machinery.

"Did you see my place in Concordia Parish?" asked Chennault anxiously.

"You bet, General," replied McKenzie, "and I can report that it is one of the most beautiful and best regulated plantations in Louisiana. I'd like to live there myself, on the banks of Lake St. John."

Note: While Chennault is at war, his Louisiana farm is being managed by his wife and children.

CAMP STEWART, Ga.—Seven promotions in 10 weeks of Army service tell the story of Alfred Rosenbloom, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Pa., who rose from a private to technical sergeant, the grade removed from the highest non-commissioned rank, in one year. Rosenbloom, a graduate of Pennsylvania State College, entered the service only two weeks after receiving his degree in economics.

are resigning, others are writing memos in a high state of emotion.

According to their heated charges, WSA is training thousands of apprentices for non-existent jobs, is holding these young draft-age men idle, and is conspiring to drive the maritime unions from the sea.

According to one confidential memo, written by pro-labor officials inside the War Shipping Administration, the Training Division has been overstaffed in a frantic effort to build a backlog of 10,000 men for maritime training, before the Army, Navy or draft boards can get their hands on them, largely to head off the unions.

The charge is that if the ships are manned with new men, they will be more tractable, and will follow the "service line" rather than the "labor line."

In broad outlines, the ruction is an expression of the mutual distrust existing between maritime unions and the Navy. The WSA training program is bringing thousands of new seamen into the industry who threaten to upset union domination.

In fact so many trainees have been brought in that thousands of them are cooling their heels, waiting for berths which cannot be provided, because sixty percent of all crews must be experienced men.

Meantime, pro-Union WSA officials claim that many trained and experienced seamen in other jobs are not being called to maritime service. They are union members.

"It is fairly clear," says one memo, "that the Training Division opposes the infusion into the Merchant Marine of anything but new blood of its own peculiar type, count and color. The question is, why?"

This indignant official answers the question as follows: "If it is because the independent character of the experienced American merchant seaman is subversive to the best interests of the American Merchant Marine, then the majority of the men who sail the ships today are right in suspecting that the government is building a reserve of more tractable men to drive them from the sea."

Note: When officer candidates finish training at the Maritime Schools at Ft. Trumbull, Conn., or Alameda, Cal., there is such a backlog of waiting officers that they are permitted, if not encouraged, to travel home at government expense for vacation.

FARMER CHENNAULT

Freshman Representative Charles E. McKenzie of Louisiana expected to get a first-hand report on the war in the Far East when he shook hands with his most distinguished constituent, Gen. Claire Chennault, leader of American forces in China, who is visiting in the United States.

But the "Fighting Tiger" almost floored McKenzie by inquiring: "How's farming down home? I can't wait to get back to my plantation."

McKenzie replied that he had just returned from Louisiana, that farmers in his district were doing "very well" considering the shortage of labor and machinery.

"Did you see my place in Concordia Parish?" asked Chennault anxiously.

"You bet, General," replied McKenzie, "and I can report that it is one of the most beautiful and best regulated plantations in Louisiana. I'd like to live there myself, on the banks of Lake St. John."

Note: While Chennault is at war, his Louisiana farm is being managed by his wife and children.

Memorial Tablet May Be Placed On Plaza At Courthouse

1,500 NOW IN UNIFORM

Chamber May Ask Other Organizations To Aid In Financing Project

Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce is taking the lead in a movement to have a Memorial Tablet bought and placed on the Pickaway county courthouse plaza, the tablet to contain the names of all Pickaway countians who are serving their country.

The Jaycee organization is sponsor of a memorial tablet which is on the Grand theatre billboard, but with all available space now filled there are several hundred names not placed on the board because of lack of room.

The Memorial Tablet question is being taken before the county commissioners, who are expected to grant permission for placing the tablet on county property. Whether the tablet will be erected in the near future of at the end of the war is not yet determined.

It is believed likely that the Jaycees will seek assistance of other civic organizations in promoting the tablet and sharing the expense involved in buying one and in putting names on it.

The Jaycees have put much effort into their present Roll of Honor, but leaders of the organization said Thursday that since all the names cannot be put on the space now being used that it is time to consider a new location and a more permanent Memorial Tablet.

At present more than 1,500 Pickaway county men are in service.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent urination during the night is a sign that your kidneys are not working properly. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ASHVILLE

Met the finest sort of navy boys here the other morning, both home on short furloughs to see the old home town again and a taste of mother's eats. The first encountered was youngster B. F. Richey here for three days only from his ship Arkansas in anchor at New York. Said he had "been across" three times, his ship being in the convoy service. Had not met up with any U-boats yet but didn't know how soon that very thing might happen. The other youngster was Victor Curry, home from the sailor training school up near Chicago, getting on fine and likes it. Both these boys told us that their officers were not hard, sour and tough, but kind to the kid sailors.

Ashville—Bill (Pappy) Fischer is home again for a time at least, from Magnetic Springs where they took out all the badness. "Pappy" is a whole lot better of his rheumatism and sure is fine. . . Mrs. Curtis Minix left here yesterday for Camp Joseph Robinson located at Little Rock, Arkansas. Mr. Minix is in camp there.

Ashville—The returns from the eighth grade examination which was given throughout the state, April 16, show that the Ashville school has 14 pupils who will receive county certificates since they ranked in the upper 25 percent of the county.

Three pupils, Jim Irwin, who was the highest in the county, Estell LeMaster, who was tied for third place, and Violet McDowell, who tied for fifth place in the county were all in the upper one percent in the state and will receive state certificates. No other school in the county had more than one pupil to rank this high. The county median was 104, the state median was 104.8 and the Ashville median was 131. Median being another word for average.

Ranked according to medians, South Bloomfield is second in the county; Pickaway, third; Wayne township, fourth; Williamsport, fifth; Duvall, sixth.

Ashville—The high point talk and guessing spot of them all in the Ashville community for the last couple of weeks, has been centered around the sale of the real estate and chattels of the late Mrs. Emma Wright and in charge of Dr. John Spindler as administrator. Yesterday was sale day and the Weather Man can not be accused of doing his full duty in putting out his best line of goods for this sale day. Crowd was large and good humored and took in as honest truth, everything that Auctioner Chalfin told them. And more, if we are telling it right, no purchaser can be accused of deliberately stealing anything. The three dwelling properties were offered separately, the first, the nice home of the late Mrs. Wright, which was purchased by Harry Reed of near town for $5,010. On what seems to be a correct statement obtained yesterday evening, Mr. Reed along with his son-in-law, Wayne Pontius and family will occupy the property soon, when some needed improvements are made. The second dwelling, to the immediate west of the Reed purchase, was bought by Harley

W. Leist of Circleville, for $1,730. This purchase, soon as some repairs are made, will be for rent. The third offering, the dwelling next to the home of Edward and Mrs. Runkle, was purchased by Mr.

Runkle at his bid of $1,125. The sale of the chattels, many of them, sold for "fair to high" prices. Total amount of sale of chattels will be named tomorrow. "Stay on the line just a minute, please".

AMERICANS AND BRITISH SCORE NEW ADVANCES

Achkel. The Second United States Army Corps is pushing forward in this area from Mateur against Ferryville, site of the power station supplying Bizerte.

Axis Line Broken

The British First Army at the southern end of the shrinking German and Italian defense line scored a new local advance which enabled patrols to penetrate deeply behind positions of the Nazi Afrika Korps.

The Germans have heavily mined the passages between the mountains in the southern area north of Enfidaville, headquarters announced.

The constantly increasing pressure by Allied ground forces, which brought French and American troops almost to the outskirts of Bizerte, was accompanied by a series of devastating aerial blows against Axis shipping and supply ports in Tunisia. Troop concentrations also were pounded severely, along with enemy landing fields.

American Boeing Flying Fortresses sank a large merchant ship in the Sicilian straits and medium bombers sank a second ship and scored hits on three others.

Tojo Dreams

While Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo, on an inspection tour in captured Manila, was boasting of new heavy blows about to be launched against America and Britain, big American Liberator planes were "saying it with bombs" at the city of the Jap base at Wewak, New Guinea.

The Wewak raiders, besides setting off large explosions and fires in the enemy-held town, scored several direct hits on a 5,000-ton cargo ship, damaged two others and fought off nine intercepting zeros without loss to themselves.

Russ Score Victory

In Russia, furious new assaults by Red army units against the Germans in the Western Caucasus followed up the Soviets' breakthrough yesterday along a 15 and one-half mile stretch where the Russians overran 10 enemy-held towns, including the important rail junction of Krimskaya, killed 7,000 Nazis and seized huge quantities of booty northeast of Novorossiisk.

In one sector alone, today's midday communique from Moscow said, the Russians slew 400 more Germans and captured still more war materiel in fierce battles. Numerous enemy fortifications and strongpoints were overcome as the Russians, in a furious onslaught, stepped up their drive to push the last Nazi out of the Axis' precarious foothold in the rich Caucasus.

REFLEVIN TRIAL DELAYED

Trial of the reflevin action of Herbert Stinson against Schlan-sky and Topolosky was continued Wednesday afternoon by Judge Meeker Terwilliger to May 12 when a material witness was unable to make an appearance. Possession of an air compressor is at stake in the action which is being presented to the court.

LOCAL POTATO SHORTAGE DUE TO U S BUYING

U. S. purchases of great supplies of potatoes for its armies and for lend-lease purposes was blamed today by wholesalers for a shortage which has left all Circleville stores without supplies. While some dealers expressed hope that the situation would be eased by the middle of the month, others said no relief was in sight, their jobbers informing them when the supply became exhausted that they had not been told when to expect more shipments.

Potato crops of Florida and Texas, where Ohio receives its bulk of new Spring shipments, are retarded this year because of weather.

Price for potatoes has gone sky high, when any are available, price for a peck being fixed at $1.25 by some local dealers.

Jobbers predict that by the middle of the month or a few days later supplies from other southern states may start moving northward. They believe when larger supplies are available prices will go down. OPA officials have been hinting that ceilings may soon be put on potatoes and similar necessities.

CONEY NANCE GOES TO TRIAL NEXT MONDAY

Judge Meeker Terwilliger said Thursday that Coney Fred Nance, Monroe township, will be put on trial next Monday on a charge of incest, the indictment concerning a daughter. Nance has waived a jury, the case to be submitted to the court.

Motion by Nance's attorney, Tom Renick, for a continuance was overruled by the court. The attorney had action delay because, he said, a bill of particulars requested from Prosecutor George Gerhardt had not been furnished. The bill has now been filed, the judge declared.

WLB Resumes Hearings As Ickes Plans To Keep Coal Mines Operating

of consumers with low supplies. Ickes is now empowered to force any producer, wholesaler, dealer or other holder of coal stocks to divert coal to those who need it.

A spokesman explained that strikes or mine accidents might deprive some industrial plants of their regular supply of fuel and the order thus assures adequate coal for continuation of war production.

Some Denied Fuel

The order was also issued because of reports that some coal companies had refused to supply coal to new users or to customers who formerly used other fuels.

Ickes said he had heard of instances where users have been deprived of coal or have had difficulty in getting the fuel because of discriminatory practices by producers and other suppliers. He warned that such cases will be investigated and "appropriate action" taken when they are discovered.

He assured coal men that the normal distribution of coal will not be disturbed under the order.

WARNING TO SPEAK

INDIANAPOLIS, May 6 — Arrogant labor leadership and many aspects of the New Deal's management of the war effort were under fire as the American Legion's national executive committee met in Indianapolis today.

The executive body opened a session at which important recommendations of standing Legion committees, which have been in session all week, will be approved or rejected.

The "Legion Week" will reach a climax tonight when National Commander Roane Waring will speak to 20,000 persons at the state fairgrounds coliseum. He will report on his recent trip to the North African front and will denounce many federal and labor union officials.

Reports circulated that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will be singled out for special attention from the national Legion head and that he will castigate John L. Lewis again for his defiance of President Roosevelt's no-strike order.

designated as Wartime Fuels Administration Regulation No. 1, "unless such action is absolutely essential."

"However," Ickes said, "when it becomes necessary to divert coal in emergencies I will not hesitate to do so."

Violation of the regulation or falsification of records in connection with the order will result in fines and imprisonment. No specific length of imprisonment or amount of fine was announced.

companion to the Connally measure.

As it passed the senate in its final form, the Connally bill was minus one of its sharpest teeth—that section giving the government the right to take injunctive action against any person or group charged with interfering in any way with production in mines or war plants after they have been taken over by the government.

It also carried sections of an amendment offered by Sen. Taft (R) of Ohio, which were adopted after the Taft amendment itself was beaten. These sections give the federal conciliation service authority to certify labor disputes to the Labor Board, and give the board power to set hours, wages and working conditions in government operated enterprises.

Corporal Barnes, recently promoted from Private First Class, was treated in a bay area hospital and is now on duty at a nearby naval base.

YOUTH DRIVING WITHOUT PERMIT LANDS IN DITCH

Kermit C. Clum, 16, of Ashville, and John Sterling, 16, of 536 Elm avenue, Circleville, were regarded as very lucky young fellows by Pickaway county authorities.

Deputy Sheriff Vern Pontious was called to the Walnut creek pike Wednesday afternoon where an accident was reported. Young Clum, who does not have a driver's license, had taken the DeSoto coupe from his father's garage, lost control of it when he went across a culvert, and wrecked it in the ditch.

Deputy Pontious said young Clum and the Sterling boy were lucky they were not seriously hurt. Both suffered bruises, and received first aid by the deputy after he brought them to Circleville.

The Clum youth, son of Arthur Clum, operator of a cream station in Ashville, was lectured by Juvenile Judge Lemuel Weiden.

U. S. purchases of great supplies of potatoes for its armies and for lend-lease purposes was blamed today by wholesalers for a shortage which has left all Circleville stores without supplies. While some dealers expressed hope that the situation would be eased by the middle of the month, others said no relief was in sight, their jobs being informed when the supply became exhausted that they had not been told when to expect more shipments.

Potato crops of Florida and Texas, where Ohio receives its bulk of new Spring shipments, are retarded this year because of weather.

Price for potatoes has gone sky high, when any are available, price for a peck being fixed at $1.25 by some local dealers.

Jobbers predict that by the middle of the month or a few days later supplies from other southern states may start moving northward. They believe when larger supplies are available prices will go down. OPA officials have been hinting that ceilings may soon be put on potatoes and similar necessities.

CONEY NANCE GOES TO TRIAL NEXT MONDAY

Judge Meeker Terwilliger said Thursday that Coney Fred Nance, Monroe township, will be put on trial next Monday on a charge of incest, the indictment concerning a daughter. Nance has waived a jury, the case to be submitted to the court.

Motion by Nance's attorney, Tom Renick, for a continuance was overruled by the court. The attorney had action delay because, he said, a bill of particulars requested from Prosecutor George Gerhardt had not been furnished. The bill has now been filed, the judge declared.

WLB Resumes Hearings As Ickes Plans To Keep Coal Mines Operating

of consumers with low supplies. Ickes is now empowered to force any producer, wholesaler, dealer or other holder of coal stocks to divert coal to those who need it. A spokesman explained that strikes or mine accidents might deprive some industrial plants of their regular supply of fuel and the order thus assures adequate coal for continuation of war production.

Some Denied Fuel

The order was also issued because of reports that some coal companies had refused to supply coal to new users or to customers who formerly used other fuels. Ickes said he had heard of instances where users have been deprived of coal or have had difficulty in getting the fuel because of discriminatory practices by producers and other suppliers. He warned that such cases will be investigated and "appropriate action" taken when they are discovered.

He assured coal men that the normal distribution of coal will not be disturbed under the order.

At the same time, it was made clear that the union would ignore the National War Labor Board hearings in Washington. The WLB hearings were resumed today with the union invited to be present. Lewis refused all comment on the next move the miners would make but announced he would hold a news conference later today.

Other responsible union leaders were not reticent in discussing the probable union plan of action. They warned that another general work stoppage would occur in the mines at the end of the 15-day truce unless the miners obtained a "contract or the equivalent of a contract."

Lewis is understood to have told the policy committee members that he had arrived at a definite understanding with Fuel Administrator Harold Ickes at their conference Sunday preceding calling of the truce. Lewis then charged, "caval" had interceded and thwarted carrying out the "understanding."

Harry L. Hopkins, one of President Roosevelt's chief advisers was named by some of the union leaders as the man who had upset the understanding Lewis reached with Ickes.

Union leaders said the miners would remain at work during the truce. "The miners keep their word," one policy committee member said, "they have thirteen days left."

SCHOOL PUPILS GET SAFETY INSTRUCTION

Circleville school children were receiving safety instructions Thursday in a series of meetings in the high school auditorium, youngsters from all buildings being taken to the school in three shifts.

Persons addressing the children briefly on safety included Sergeant Kane of the Pennsylvania railroad police force, Police Chief W. F. McCrady and J. Wray Henry, high school principal. Also participating in the program were W. E. Hilyard and A. V. Osborn of the Pennsylvania and N. and W. railroads, respectively, and Miss Florence Hoffman, eighth grade principal.

Children were urged to stay off railroad property and to be careful in crossing intersections whether afoot or on bicycles.

Mine Chiefs Scatter

NEW YORK, May 6.—The 300 members of the United Mine Workers of America policy committee scattered to their homes throughout the country today to report to their locals on the status of the mine wage dispute.

companion to the Connally measure.

As it passed the senate in its final form, the Connally bill was minus one of its sharpest teeth—that section giving the government the right to take injunctive action against any person or group charged with interfering in any way with production in mines or war plants after they have been taken over by the government.

It also carried sections of an amendment offered by Sen. Taft (R) of Ohio, which were adopted after the Taft amendment itself was beaten. These sections give the federal conciliation service authority to certify labor disputes to the Labor Board, and give the board power to set hours, wages and working conditions in government operated enterprises.

COLUMBUS, May 6.—Staff Sergeant George A. Eisel, 33, of Columbus, was the only survivor of a plane crash Monday in Iceland which caused death of Lt. Gen. Frank M. Andrews and 13 other persons.

Lt. Gen. Andrews was commander of American forces in the European theatre of war.

HANLEY'S BUICK COUPE IS REPORTED STOLEN

Police were asked Thursday noon to look for the Buick coupe belonging to Gerald Hanley, Watt street. Hanley thought his mother, Mrs. Edwin Wilson, had the car, and she thought her son had the car. Neither had it.

The car, a 1938 model, carried license plates numbered X-5028. A description of the car was broadcast over state highway patrol radio Thursday afternoon.

Receiving Medal More Trying Than Fighting Japs, Marine Declares

criss-cross of machine gun fire was something to see.

"One of the lighted Jap grenades missed, but a second caught me in the left arm. I didn't know whether my arm was on or off, but I kept throwing grenades with my good arm. A bullet or grenade fragment caught me in the chest. I could see blood spewing from my chest and arm, and I thought I was a goner.

"Just then I heard a scream, and looking up I saw a Jap running at me, screaming, with his bayonet pointed straight at me. I still had my .45 pistol in my good hand. I fired four times. The Jap grabbed his stomach, dropped his rifle and rolled into me dead."

Just after daylight before he was rescued, Barnes said a Jap sniper spotted him and fired five or ten times and one shot hit his left elbow.

Corporal Barnes, recently promoted from Private First Class, was treated in a bay area hospital and is now on duty at a nearby naval base.

His father, Hiram J. Barnes, fought 18 months in France during World War I. A 21-year-old brother, Private Edward Barnes, was with the Marines on Guadalcanal, but the brothers never met.

YOUTH DRIVING WITHOUT PERMIT LANDS IN DITCH

Kermit C. Clum, 16, of Ashville, and John Sterling, 16, of 536 Elm avenue, Circleville, were regarded as very lucky young fellows by Pickaway county authorities.

Deputy Sheriff Vern Pontious was called to the Walnut creek pike Wednesday afternoon where an accident was reported. Young Clum, who does not have a driver's license, had taken the DeSoto coupe from his father's garage, lost control of it when he went across a culvert, and wrecked it in the ditch.

Deputy Pontious said young Clum and the Sterling boy were lucky they were not seriously hurt. Both suffered bruises, and received first aid by the deputy after he brought them to Circleville.

The Clum youth, son of Arthur Clum, operator of a cream station in Ashville, was lectured by Juvenile Judge Lemuel Weidon.

LIPSTICK GOES TO WAR

WOMEN'S share in this war expands surprisingly. It is a far cry from Florence Nightingale and the Crimean War to the services of these strong, competent women who go beyond nursing and expand their usefulness in a hundred ways. They are found now in every army and on nearly every front, enduring soldiers' hardships and doing whatever has to be done, with a smile.

"It is somewhat of a shock to see women in the field digging fox holes," writes an American correspondent with the Second Army in Tennessee. "We saw them this morning at the so-and-so evacuation hospital. They live in tents, bathe in cold water out of tomato cans, yet somehow manage to maintain the allure that American women never seem to lose under any conditions."

One of the women there says cheerfully that it's like living on a college campus. Another admits that it's a little rugged, but she likes it. Another calmly remarks that "in spite of everything, we manage to hold to our lipstick." And it's the truth. Ernie Pyle has told how, in the sandy wastes of North Africa, these young women bob up serenely just behind the battle lines, with their clothes worn to shreds and only enough of their uniforms left to identify them, but in some miraculous way cheerful and neat just the same. It doesn't seem right just to call them the "gentler sex" any more. Maybe they should be called the "superior sex." For they seem able to do the work of both sexes. They could and would fight if they had to.

LIFE OF A CONGRESSMAN

WHAT is it like to be a Congressman? Most people will never know at first hand, but anyone curious can find out by taking his Congressman aside and asking him confidentially.

Light on the subject is also to be had from a collection of letters, just advertised by a Michigan dealer in autographs, written to Congressman Martin H. Glynn in 1900. Glynn was later governor of New York, and as keynoter of the Democratic national convention in 1916 originated the famous slogan, "He kept us out of war."

The letters show clearly why Congressmen are as they are. Besides the never ending requests for garden seeds, there are demands for government bulletins on subjects the government never heard of, instructions to vote for a certain bill, orders to vote against it, requests for jobs like "Register of the Tides at Albany," and the like.

As the dealer says, "Anybody who has the bug for running for Congress could make a worse investment than this lot." He might learn something.

It's grand to be "in the soup" now, with dried soups off the ration list.

Senate "Sit-In" Request Solons Want to Attend Executive News Confs
No Compliment to Press
By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

UNITED STATES SENATORS are not exactly complimentary to Washington's newspapermen in asking to be permitted to sit in on all the reporters' press conferences with high executive officials.

These conferences of course are mass interviews. Naturally it is not a practicability for the average governmental higher-up to be questioned by the boys one at a time. So the system is for each official to have his regular series of dates, when he receives the whole gang, all in a crowd.

An occasional special pet doubtless snoops in by himself, surreptitiously, but it isn't the rule. It doesn't popularize him with the rank-and-file of his profession. Furthermore, dope that he gets in this fashion has to be so fully authenticated as to amount to a definite statement from headquarters. If not it's suspected as a fake. And definiteness is just what officialdom generally wants to dodge. If the stuff's original is doubtful, it's n. g. Otherwise it's apt to raise Cain.

Well, suppose we have a whole herd of correspondents, quizzing a single official.

You might say that the net result should be fairly representative. Such, however, isn't necessarily the case.

The official's tendency is to duck and dodge. And the correspondents' tendency is to be mightily careful how they quote him, because, if they err, they've got a sizable audience of witnesses to call inaccurate quotations to account.

The insides of these debates is what the senate is trying to probe. I presume the house of representatives is equally curious, but the senate started the quiz.

Democrats, as well as Republicans, are in on it.

The initiative was taken by Chairman Frederick Van Nuys of the

TABOO FOURTH TERM TALK

WASHINGTON — Democratic party chieftains have secretly decided on two major points of strategy for the 1944 election campaign.

First—Not to talk about a fourth term for President Roosevelt. The strategy is, "Mum's the word" regarding the President. Speeches by prominent Democrats urging him to run again will be taboo from now on.

Second—Democratic leaders have decided to concentrate activities during the campaign on keeping a two-thirds majority in the Senate to support the President on the peace treaty. (The House does not vote on treaties).

It passed unnoticed, but there was a tell-tale illustration of the "no 4th term talk" strategy at a recent dinner in Philadelphia for the Democratic organization of Eastern Pennsylvania. New Deal Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania made an all-out 4th term speech, but three speakers who followed him—Democratic National Chairman Frank Walker, Attorney General Francis Biddle and former Representative Joseph Casey, a White House adviser—didn't breathe a word about a 4th term.

Walker's recent trip through the nation, made to tap political sentiment, convinced him that it will be very difficult for the Democrats to retain their slim majority in the House next year.

That is why Walker and his associates have decided to concentrate on the Senate. In doing so, Walker will not hesitate to cross party lines and support Republican candidates (behind the scenes, of course) who can be counted on to back up the President's peace policies.

One GOP candidate the Democratic leadership will definitely support is Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college, who will run against isolationist Senator Charles Tobey in the New Hampshire Republican primary next year.

TRAVELLING AGREES WITH HENRY

As Vice President Wallace was saying good-bye on his trip to South America, he asked Mrs. Laurence Duggan, wife of the State Department's Latin American expert who was accompanying him:

"Mrs. Duggan, is there anything you want me to do for your husband?"

"Mr. Vice President," replied Mrs. Duggan tactfully, "my husband is a man who needs a lot of sleep."

On the trip which followed, however, neither Duggan nor Wallace got much sleep. They were on the go night and day—receptions, speeches, plane hops, more receptions, more speeches. However, when they arrived home both looked extremely well. Bronzed as an Inca Indian, Wallace had lost ten pounds, never was in better health.

Since then he has been getting up around 5:30 every morning to transplant vegetables in his sister's garden. She and her husband, the Swiss Minister, live not far from Wallace's hotel, and he goes by there every morning for an hour's work before breakfast.

A farmer all his life, Henry misses the feel of the earth on his fingers.

upper chamber's judiciary committee.

He began with a demand for senatorial representation at Information Director Elmer Davis' press conferences. Elmer was quite acquiescent. He's an information man by occupation.

He's had more trouble than any other wartime executive. This isn't because he's secretive. It's because he tells more than some of his associates approve. The senate doesn't want him unduly coked up.

Accordingly, the first of these get-togethers was perfectly harmonious.

However, other big executives than Elmer Davis don't enjoy so much leakage from their various departments and commissions in congress' direction. There are matters that they want to keep hushed up, at least temporarily.

Well, the question may be asked, considering that these affairs primarily are press conferences, "why don't the lawmakers read the newspapers and thus find out what's asked and answered in the privacy of journalistic hullabaloo?"

Ah, that's exactly why I remarked, above, that the senators aren't particularly complimentary to the correspondents' aggregation in insisting on overbearing all that they ask and are told. They simply are skeptical that the boys print everything that they find out.

There's ground for this suspicion. A scribe who, scaring up some confidential facts, and publishing 'em, against official warnings to the contrary, is due to find himself on the outer doorstep the next time he visits that sanctum for more news.

The fact is that, generally speaking, the executive and legislative branches of the government are, to one another, as hostile as the dickens in times of emergency. The press is the liaison between 'em and they're both suspicious of it.

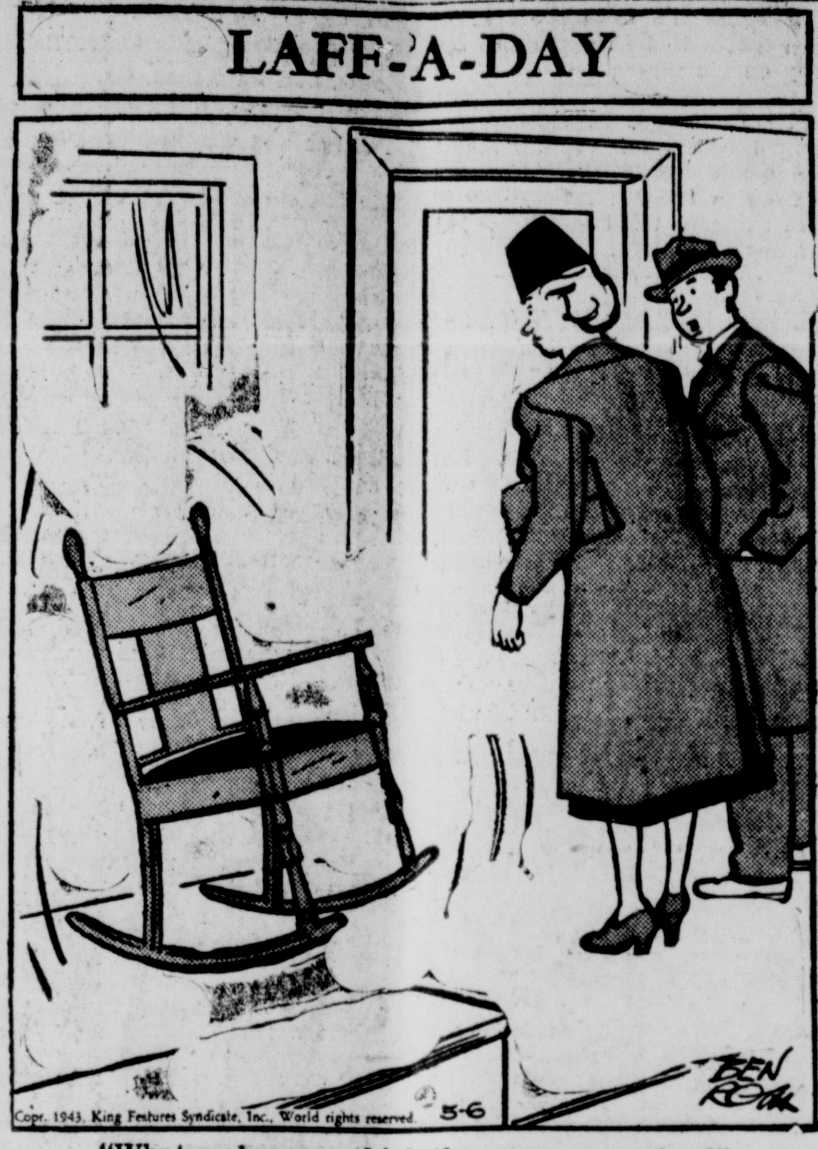

We know how reluctant the executive crew has been to advices concerning the ante-post-war discussions of late.

(Like that food conference, for instance.)

Well, the apprehension naturally was that they'd be unskillfully played.

Is that a compliment to our press?

Congress manifestly stands pat for journalism versus officialdom. But does it stand pat enough?

Thoughts on the Recent So-Called Eating Binge

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"EATING Binge Must End," reads a heading in my daily newspaper and refers to statements made by Mr. Roy F. Hendrickson, chief of the Food Distribution Administration.

What do you mean, eating binge? It was only about a year before Pearl Harbor that Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon-General of the United States Public Health Service, told us that 40,000,000 Americans were suffering from deficiency diseases and Mr. Paul V. McNutt, not to be outdone, upped him and said that 45,000,000 Americans were "lacking foods essential for health" and 95,000,000 Americans "have impaired health because they do not eat the right food."

Of course, I did not believe these statements at the time. I based my beliefs on observations in a dispensary clinic in a hospital where the patients are in the low income group, because it was rare to find more than one or two cases of deficiency disease in 80,000 patients a year—even cases in the early stages. Furthermore, I undertook the examination of 1500 employees in an industrial plant and found no evidences of deficiency disease in any of them. According to Dr. Parran's remarks I should have found 500 with deficiency disease and according to Mr. McNutt I should have found 1000.

Estimate of Deficiency Diseases

But in the present set-up on food rationing it is not at all unlikely that we will begin to see deficiency disease, although I do not believe ever to estimate.

The Western Hemisphere can supply food in abundance for the whole world. I cannot understand by what process of stumbling our food administrators have gotten us to this pass.

"We need not go hungry and, unless we are stubborn, we need not be improperly nourished," says Mr. Hendrickson.

The American people are not stubborn, but most of them have no idea about the vitamins. And they have not been trained to learn any more than they have been trained to use stikers in order to get their rightful amount of food.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. C.:—Would one teaspoonful of baking soda mixed in a cupful of water and used on the eyes, from 5 to 25 drops a day, be harmful?

Answer: No. Baking soda makes an alkaline solution which should be soothing to the eyes.

E. B.:—What causes an enlarged heart and what are the symptoms? Is there a cure or any precautions that must be taken?

Answer: An enlarged heart results from any extra work that the heart has to do. It is a compensation on the part of nature and as a matter of fact, does no harm. Because an enlarged heart means that there has been some extra work for the heart to do in the past, the individual should take some ordinary precautions in the way of not doing any extra, or suddenly increased, activity.

G. C.:—Of what value is Amphetol for stomach ulcers; how and when should it be taken?

Answer: Amphetol is a soothing mixture which quiets the pain and helps healing. It should be taken by mouth.

J. K. B.:—What are the following diseases: blood dyscrasia and infectious mononucleosis? Are they hereditary and can they be transmitted from one person to another?

Answer: Blood dyscrasia is a general term for any blood disease. Infectious mononucleosis is a fever in which some rather striking changes occur in the blood, but it is probably not a blood disease. It is not hereditary and probably cannot be transmitted from one person to another.

The BLIND MAN'S SECRET
by RICHARD HOUGHTON
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

"OH, CLEMANTINE! He's here," Agatha gasped. She still stared out through the window as though frozen, although their car of the train had rolled to a stop beyond the green waiting on the platform.

"Here!"

"Yes, the man who was watching the front of your rooming house!"

"What are we going to do?"

"We can't stay on the train. We've got to get off. And here he comes, walking along the platform."

Both women shrank back in the car. The man was looking casually at the alighting passengers, but missing none of them. He was of medium height and weight, wore a modest gray-striped business suit, a gray hat, and carried a briefcase. He was smooth-shaven, dark of face and large of nose. He would have passed unnoticed as a typical business man—if Agatha had not recognized him.

"Let's go to the rear car and get off the opposite side," Clemantine suggested.

They started back along the aisle, braving the displeased expressions of the other passengers, all of whom were crowding forward. And at the end of the last car they discovered they could alight only from the station side of the train.

"We'll have to take the chance he doesn't see us," advised Clemantine, reconnoitering from the steps. "There's quite a crowd on the platform now, toward the front of the train. Quick!"

She jumped down and stepped around the rear of the train. Agatha followed. Standing beside the rails, momentarily shielded from sight of their pursuer, they looked around for the best escape.

"We're right in the middle of the railroad yards," observed Agatha with sinking heart. "The place is surrounded by a fence."

Clemantine pointed. "Let's hide between those two lines of box cars and walk back along the track. The train certainly don't come in through a gate."

They fled at a quick, stumbling trot over the rough ground, their suitcases bumping their legs, and turned their heads every few steps to look behind them until the freight cars were between them and the station.

The cinders underfoot made dirty walking as they proceeded down the long narrow aisle formed by the two freight trains. Clemantine's white shoes were no longer white. Agatha looked fearfully into the open box cars for hoboes, and wondered what she would say if they encountered a trainman.

A locomotive rumbled and hissed past on the far side of one of the standing trains. Cars on another track coupled together in a series of crashes and rattling bumps.

"I wonder if our feet can be seen from under the cars?" said Clemantine.

Agatha ducked and peered under. A man was walking along the opposite side of the train—a man whose legs were encased in gray-striped trousers!

She grasped the girl by an arm, halting her. "Sh!" she warned.

Clemantine stared wide-eyed as Agatha ducked down again. The legs were walking on.

"Quick!" whispered Agatha. "Back the way we came! He's searching the yards for us!"

The two women started to run, the sounds of their footsteps covered by another passing locomotive. Luckily their suitcases were light, but the mere awkwardness of them was maddening.

One of the two freight trains came to life with heavy jerks that progressed swiftly along its length. It started rolling slowly.

"Hurry!" urged Agatha. "We're going to be uncovered!"

She hadn't realized how far they had come from the station. Now they had to get back to it—out through its exit.

The freight train was pulling out of the yards, in the direction opposite to that in which they were running. It was squealing and grinding, faster and faster. It made Agatha dizzy, gave her the feeling she was running at high speed.

The end of the train cleared past them. Unshielded from view, they still were a hundred feet from the end of the passenger train platform, across three tracks.

Agatha looked wildly over her shoulder as she stumbled across the rails. The man in the gray-striped suit saw them! He started to run in pursuit.

They were in the station now. There was no crowd to impede their way. The man at the gate grinned as he stepped aside. He thought they were running to catch the streetcar standing outside.

He was right. They scrambled aboard the car just as the conductor clanged the bell. The man in the gray-striped suit ran out of the station—too late.

"Well!" gasped Clemantine as she dropped, nearly breathless, into a seat. "We—we ought to try out for the—'the track team'!"

Agatha couldn't speak.

She hoped they would lose their pursuer in the city crowds, but after the streetcar had jolted along for three blocks her anxious eyes saw a familiar automobile creeping up from the rear. The man in the gray-striped suit was driving. She nudged Clemantine and whispered fearfully, "He's going to follow alongside and catch us when we try to get off!"

"Maybe we'll find a street corner where there's a policeman..."

Policemen were lacking. Traffic lights did police duty. There was only one policeman in the next ten minutes, and he was in the middle of the block, walking the wrong way.

"The traffic is thick—he can't get out of his car to chase us," Clemantine observed. "Let's get off at the next corner. It's a main cross street. Unless there's a parking place where he can stop right away we'll have a chance to lose him among the shoppers."

"We certainly won't lose him staying here!"

About half the passengers rose for the next stop. Clemantine and Agatha stepped forward to descend the steps beside the motor-man. The man in the gray-striped suit was forced by the automobile in front of him to remain at the rear steps of the streetcar.

The alighting passengers were agonizingly slow. Agatha feared that the lights which had stopped the automobiles might change, or that their pursuer would abandon his machine in the street and meet them on the crosswalk, afoot.

"There's a parking place!" cried Clemantine in dismay.

They reached the sidewalk just as the traffic lights changed.

"Quick! Into this big store!" Agatha urged. "Maybe we can lose him."

"Better hide in a corner close to the door," Clemantine suggested. "When he comes in we can duck out again."

They waited. Agatha began to hope they had given him the slip. No such luck! He entered from the street with a group of shoppers, looking as innocent as any of them.

The fugitives had forgotten the mirrors on the store pillars, until Agatha suddenly found herself staring directly into the man's eyes!

As she trembled in terror, he approached, smiled and raised his hat. "I think you ladies had better return with me. You should know better than try to play hide and seek with the FBI!"

LIFE OF A CONGRESSMAN

WHAT is it like to be a Congressman? Most people will never know at first hand, but anyone curious can find out by taking his Congressman aside and asking him confidentially.

Light on the subject is also to be had from a collection of letters, just advertised by a Michigan dealer in autographs, written to Congressman Martin H. Glynn in 1900. Glynn was later governor of New York, and as keynoter of the Democratic national convention in 1916 originated the famous slogan, "He kept us out of war."

The letters show clearly why Congressmen are as they are. Besides the never-ending requests for garden seeds, there are demands for government bulletins on subjects the government never heard of, instructions to vote for a certain bill, orders to vote against it, requests for jobs like "Register of the Tides at Albany," and the like.

As the dealer says, "Anybody who has the bug for running for Congress could make a worse investment than this lot." He might learn something.

It's grand to be "in the soup" now, with dried soups off the ration list.

Senate "Sit-In" Request Solons Want to Attend
No Compliment to Press Executive News Confs

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

UNITED STATES SENATORS are not exactly complimentary to Washington's newspapermen in asking to be permitted to sit in on all the reporters' press conferences with high executive officials.

These conferences of course are mass interviews. Naturally it is not a practicability for the average governmental higher-up to be questioned by the boys one at a time. So the system is for each official to have his regular series of dates, when he receives the whole gang, all in a crowd.

An occasional special pet doubtless sneaks in by himself, surreptitiously, but it isn't the rule. It doesn't popularize him with the rank-and-file of his profession. Furthermore, dope that he gets in this fashion has to be so fully authenticated as to amount to a definite statement from headquarters. If not it's suspected as a fake. And definiteness is just what officialdom generally wants to dodge. If the stuff's origin is doubtful, it's n. g. Otherwise it's apt to raise Cain.

Well, suppose we have a whole herd of correspondents, quizzing a single official.

You might say that the net result should be fairly representative. Such, however, isn't necessarily the case.

The official's tendency is to duck and dodge. And the correspondents' tendency is to be mightily careful how they quote him, because, if they err, they've got a sizable audience of witnesses to call inaccurate quotations to account.

The insides of these debates is what the senate is trying to probe. I presume the house of representatives is equally curious, but the senate started the quiz.

Democrats, as well as Republicans, are in on it. The initiative was taken by Chairman Frederick Van Nuys of the

TABOO FOURTH TERM TALK

WASHINGTON — Democratic party chieftains have secretly decided on two major points of strategy for the 1944 election campaign.

First—Not to talk about a fourth term for President Roosevelt. The strategy is, "Mum's the word" regarding the President. Speeches by prominent Democrats urging him to run again will be taboo from now on.

Second—Democratic leaders have decided to concentrate activities during the campaign on keeping a two-thirds majority in the Senate to support the President on the peace treaty. (The House does not vote on treaties).

It passed unnoticed, but there was a tell-tale illustration of the "no 4th term talk" strategy at a recent dinner in Philadelphia for the Democratic organization of Eastern Pennsylvania. New Deal Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania made an all-out 4th term speech, but three speakers who followed him—Democratic National Chairman Frank Walker, Attorney General Francis Biddle and former Representative Joseph Casey, a White House adviser—didn't breathe a word about a 4th term.

Walker's recent trip through the nation, made to tap political sentiment, convinced him that it will be very difficult for the Democrats to retain their slim majority in the House next year.

That is why Walker and his associates have decided to concentrate on the Senate. In doing so, Walker will not hesitate to cross party lines and support Republican candidates (behind the scenes, of course) who can be counted on to back up the President's peace policies.

One GOP candidate the Democratic leadership will definitely support is Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college, who will run against isolationist Senator Charles Tobey in the New Hampshire Republican primary next year.

TRAVELLING AGREES WITH HENRY

As Vice President Wallace was saying good-bye on his trip to South America, he asked Mrs. Laurence Duggan, wife of the State Department's Latin American expert who was accompanying him:

"Mrs. Duggan, is there anything you want me to do for your husband?"

"Mr. Vice President," replied Mrs. Duggan tactfully, "my husband is a man who needs a lot of sleep."

On the trip which followed, however, neither Duggan nor Wallace got much sleep. They were on the go night and day—receptions, speeches, plane hops, more receptions, more speeches. However, when they arrived home both looked extremely well. Bronzed as an Inca Indian, Wallace had lost ten pounds, never was in better health.

Since then he has been getting up around 5:30 every morning to transplant vegetables in his sister's garden. She and her husband, the Swiss Minister, live not far from Wallace's hotel, and he goes by there every morning for an hour's work before breakfast.

A farmer all his life, Henry misses the feel of the earth on his fingers.

upper chamber's judiciary committee.

He began with a demand for senatorial representation at Information Director Elmer Davis' press conferences. Elmer was quite acquiescent. He's an information man by occupation.

He's had more trouble than any other wartime executive. This isn't because he's secretive. It's because he tells more than some of his associates approve. The senate doesn't want him unduly coked up. Accordingly, the first of these get-togethers was perfectly harmonious.

However, other big executives than Elmer Davis don't enjoy so much leakage from their various departments and commissions in congress' direction. There are matters that they want to keep hushed up, at least temporarily.

Well, the question may be asked, considering that these affairs primarily are press conferences, "why don't the lawmakers read the newspapers and thus find out what's asked and answered in the privacy of journalistic hullahalloo?"

Ah, that's exactly why I remarked, above, that the senators aren't particularly complimentary to the correspondents' aggregation in insisting on overhearing all that they ask and are told. They simply are skeptical that the boys print everything that they find out.

There's ground for this suspicion. A scribe who, scaring up some confidential facts, and publishing 'em, against official warnings to the contrary, is due to find himself on the outer doorstep the next time he visits that sanctum for more news.

The fact is that, generally speaking, the executive and legislative branches of the government are, to one another, as hostile as the dickens in times of emergency. The press is the liaison between 'em and they're both suspicious of it.

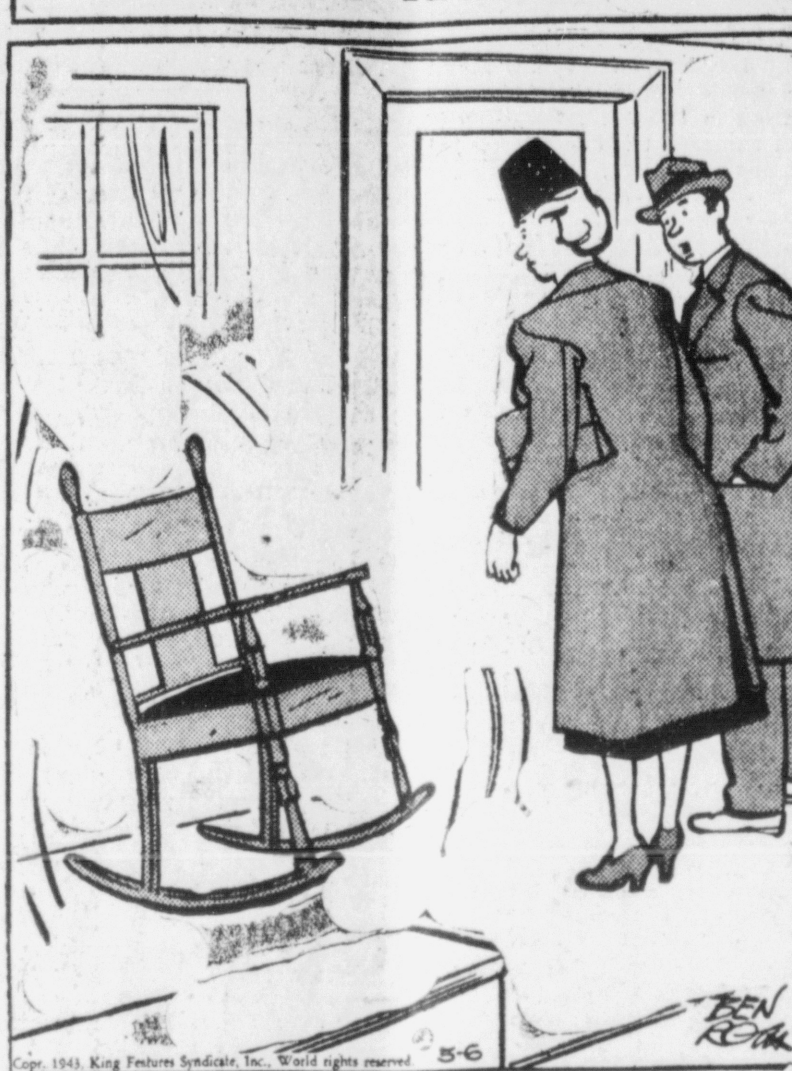

We know how reluctant the executive crew has been to advice concerning the ante-post-war discussions of late.

(Like that food conference, for instance.) Well, the apprehension naturally was that they'd be unskillfully publicized.

Is that a compliment to our press?

Congress manifestly stands pat for journalism versus officialdom. But does it stand pat enough?

DIET AND HEALTH

Thoughts on the Recent So-Called Eating Binge

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"EATING Binge Must End," reads a heading in my daily newspaper and refers to statements made by Mr. Roy F. Hendrickson, chief of the Food Distribution Administration.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

What do you mean, eating binge? It was only about a year before Pearl Harbor that Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon-General of the United States Public Health Service, told us that 40,000,000 Americans were suffering from deficiency diseases and Mr. Paul V. McNutt, not to be outdone, upped him and said that 45,000,000 Americans were "lacking foods essential for health" and 95,000,000 Americans "have impaired health because they do not eat the right food."

Of course, I did not believe these statements at the time. I based my beliefs on observations in a dispensary clinic in a hospital where the patients are in the low income group, because it was rare to find more than one or two cases of deficiency disease in 80,000 patients a year—even cases in the early stages. Furthermore, I undertook the examination of 1500 employees in an industrial plant and found no evidences of deficiency disease in any of them. According to Dr. Parran's remarks I should have found 500 with deficiency disease and according to Mr. McNutt I should have found 1000.

Estimate of Deficiency Diseases But in the present set-up on food rationing it is not at all unlikely that we will begin to see deficiency disease, although I do not believe ever in the numbers that Dr. Parran seemed to estimate.

The Western Hemisphere can supply food in abundance for the whole world. I cannot understand by what process of stumbling our food administrators have gotten us to this pass.

"We need not go hungry and, unless we are stubborn, we need not be improperly nourished," says Mr. Hendrickson.

The American people are not stubborn, but most of them have no idea about the vitamins. And they have not been trained to learn any more than they have been trained to use stickers in order to get their rightful amount of food.

Used Instinctive Selection In the old days of plenty all but a fraction got a balanced diet because they couldn't help themselves. Instinct and taste and appetite told them to go to a grocery store and get a variety of foods or to grow a variety of foods on their farms.

Mr. Wickard said, after reading some criticisms of this kind from Louis Bromfield, the farmer-author, that Mr. Bromfield had not made one constructive suggestion. Well, I'll make a constructive suggestion for Mr. Wickard:

It is one that was made by a friend of mine as long ago as May, 1942: "Stop worrying about the prices of food and get producing. Get away from the Administration's Canute-like inflation phobia. The farmer isn't going to break his back to increase production when you weigh him down with price ceilings, take away his labor and ladle out extra wages and favors to industrial labor."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. C.—Would one teaspoonful of baking soda mixed in a cupful of water and used on the eyes, from 5 to 25 drops a day, be harmful?

Answer: No. Baking soda makes an alkaline solution which should be soothing to the eyes.

E. B.—What causes an enlarged heart and what are the symptoms? Is there a cure or any precautions that must be taken?

Answer: An enlarged heart results from any work that the heart has to do. It is a compensation on the part of nature and as a matter of fact, does no harm. Because an enlarged heart means that there has been some extra work for the heart to do in the past, the individual should take some ordinary precautions, or the sudden increase, activity.

G. C.—Of what value is Amphetol for stomach ulcers; how and when should it be taken?

Answer: Amphetol is a soothing mixture which quiets the pain and helps healing. It should be taken by mouth.

J. K. B.—What are the following diseases: blood dyscrasia and infectious mononucleosis? Are they hereditary and can they be transmitted from one person to another?

Answer: Blood dyscrasia is a general term for any blood disease. Infectious mononucleosis is a fever in which some rather striking changes occur in the blood, but it is probably not a blood disease. It is not hereditary and probably cannot be transmitted from one person to another.

The BLIND MAN'S SECRET

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO
"OH, CLEMANTINE! He's here," Agatha gasped. She still stared out through the window as though frozen, although their car of the rails had rolled to a stop beyond the man waiting on the platform.

"Yes, the man who was watching the front of your rooming house!" "What are we going to do?" "We can't stay on the train. We've got to get off. And here he comes, walking along the platform."

With women shrunk back in the car. The man was looking casually at the alighting passengers, but missing none of them. He was of medium height and weight, wore a modest gray-striped business suit, a gray hat, and carried a briefcase. He was smooth-shaven, dark of face and large of nose. He would have passed unnoticed as a typical business man—if Agatha had not recognized him.

Let's go to the rear car and get off the opposite side," Clemantine suggested. They started back along the aisle, braving the displeased expressions of the other passengers, all of whom were crowding forward. And at the end of the last car they discovered they could alight only from the station side of the train.

"We'll have to take the chance he doesn't see us," advised Clemantine, reconnoitering from the steps. "There's quite a crowd on the platform now, toward the front of the train. Quick!"

She jumped down and stepped around the rear of the train. Agatha followed. Standing between the rails, momentarily shielded from sight of their pursuer, they looked around for the best escape.

"We're right in the middle of the railroad yards," observed Agatha with sinking heart. "The place is surrounded by a fence."

Clemantine pointed. "Let's hide between those two lines of box cars and walk back along the track. The trains certainly don't come in through a gate."

They fled at a quick, stumbling trot over the rough ground, their suitcases bumping their legs, and turned their heads every few steps to look behind them until the freight cars were between them and the station.

The cinders underfoot made dirty walking as they proceeded down the long narrow aisle formed by the two freight trains. Clemantine's white shoes were no longer white. Agatha looked fearfully into the open box cars for hoboes, and wondered what she would say if they encountered a trainman.

A locomotive rumbled and hissed past on the far side of one of the standing trains. Cars on another track coupled together in a series of crashes and rattling bumps.

"I wonder if our feet can be seen from under the cars?" said Clemantine.

Agatha ducked and peered under. A man was walking along the opposite side of the train—a man whose legs were encased in gray-striped trousers!

She grasped the girl by an arm, halting her. "Sh!" she warned.

Clemantine stared wide-eyed as Agatha ducked down again. The legs were walking on.

"Quick!" whispered Agatha. "Back the way we came! He's searching the yards for us!"

The two women started to run, the sounds of their footsteps covered by another passing locomotive. Luckily their suitcases were light, but the mere awkwardness of them was maddening.

One of the two freight trains came to life with heavy jerks that progressed swiftly along its length. It started rolling slowly.

"Hurry!" urged Agatha. "We're going to be uncovered!"

She hadn't realized how far they had come from the station. Now they had to get back to it—out through its exit.

The freight train was pulling out of the yards, in the direction opposite to that in which they were running. It was squealing and grinding, faster and faster. It made Agatha dizzy, gave her the feeling she was running at high speed.

The end of the train cleared past them. Unshielded from view, they still were a hundred feet from the end of the passenger train platform, across three tracks.

Agatha looked wildly over her shoulder as she stumbled across the rails. The man in the gray-striped suit saw them! He started to run in pursuit.

They were in the station now. There was no crowd to impede their way. The man at the gate grinned as he stepped aside. He thought they were running to catch the streetcar standing outside.

He was right. They scrambled aboard the car just as the conductor clanged the bell. The man in the gray-striped suit ran out of the station—too late.

"Well!" gasped Clemantine as she dropped, nearly breathless, into a seat. "We—ought to try out for the—the track team!" Agatha couldn't speak.

LOU NOVIKOFF BADLY NEEDED BY CUB OUTFIT

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, May 6—A mere matter of $3,500 may be the stumbling block that has caused the Chicago Cubs to falter so miserably at the very start of the National league pennant race. Those few pennies—and that's all $3,500 is in a baseball setup—have kept Lou Novikoff, the mad Russian, from signing his 1943 contract. They might go right on floundering with him in the lineup, to be sure. He doesn't carry a pennant guarantee pasted on his bat, but in times like these a .300 hitter isn't one to be sneezed off. He inevitably must be more help than hindrance.

According to the story, he was paid $6,000 last year and was offered $6,500 for this season, with the result that he demanded $10,000—and is probably laughing his mad Russian laugh at the inept antics of the Cubs, while he goes through his hideout.

At the start of the race, the Cubs generally were picked to finish this season no worse than third, whereupon they promptly began flopping and falling until they went into a five game losing streak that was broken yesterday when they outlasted the St. Louis Cardinals in 14 innings. On Tuesday they broke a string of 23 scoreless innings.

It may be that they are about to get going, yet the Cub fans would like it much better, undoubtedly, if whatever is to happen to them would happen with Novikoff in the lineup. He, as has been duly noted, is one of the most popular players ever to wear a Cub uniform.

YANKEES FIND RED SOX EASY

Balk Produces Win
Indians Divide; Reds
Defeat Pittsburgh

NEW YORK, May 6—If the New York Yankees didn't have to play anybody else except the Boston Red Sox this season they could start running another pennant up the flag pole right now. As of today, the Yanks have won five out of six games this season from that club that some picked as American league contenders. The champion's did it again yesterday, and again in the ninth inning, 4 to 3, to stay on top in the standings and to keep the Red Sox down where it is dark and dismal—in fact racing with the Chicago White Sox for the cellar position.

The Yankees won with the aid of a break traceable to the greenness of a rookie—Pitcher Anton Karl, who had relieved Tex Hughson, and, with one out and the bases loaded in the ninth, balked Charley Keller home with the margin of victory.

Keller previously had belted a home run inside the park to enjoy a big day for himself at the expense of the visitors.

The White Sox meantime split a pair with the Cleveland Indians. The latter took the opener, 2 to 1, then dropped the nightcap, 5 to 2, in 11 innings.

Alex Carrasquel's four-hit hurling gave Washington an 8 to 1 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics and Rookie Frank Overmire hurled a four-hitter against the St. Louis Browns as the Detroit Tigers won by 5 to 1.

The Brooklyn Dodgers continued to set the pace in the National league by a safe margin when they thumped the hapless Philadelphia Phillies, 18 to 6 with a 23-hit attack that included a home run by Dolph Camilli. Evert Dodger, except Relief Pitcher Newt Kimball—made at least one hit and scored at least one run in the one-sided game.

A highlight of it all was the way Augie Galan played the role of lead-off man, reaching base six times out of six trips to the plate. He belted three singles and a double and walked twice.

In all the Dodgers made seven two base hits in pounding an assortment of Philly hurlers. Max Macon was credited with the Dodger win. He pitched until the ninth when Kimball took over.

In a double-header which produced a parade of 12 hurlers, the mound the New York Giants twice tripped the Boston Braves, 5 to 1 and 7 to 3. Buster Maynard and Sid Gordon belted homers for the Giants in the first game to help sew that one up. The Giants won the nightcap with a six-run sixth inning.

The Chicago Cubs ended a five-game losing streak

MARINES ON MIDWAY

The second of two dramatic stories on "The Battle of Midway" will be presented on "The Man Behind the Gun" Sunday, May 9, at 9:30 p. m. over the Columbia network. The hero of the historic battle is one of the 16 Marine dive bomber pilots who flew three miles through a curtain of solid anti-aircraft fire and 36 Jap Zeros to bomb the Japanese aircraft carrier "Soryu." Prior to the time the Jap fleet was spotted off Midway, restless Marines awaiting action tried amusing themselves with watching "goony birds." The strange birds of Midway were so named by the Marines because of their ridiculous behaviour. The second story on "The Battle of Midway" opens with the sighting of the Jap fleet—the routine, restless days of awaiting action come to an abrupt ending. The smashing bombardment delivered by the Marine Dive Bomber Pilots resulted in the complete rout of the Japanese fleet off Midway.

"HOUR OF CHARM"

Music by Irving Berlin makes up the "Hour of Charm" program, when Phil Spitalnik takes his all-girl choir and orchestra to Fort Myer, Va., for the Sunday broadcast May 9, at 9 p. m., over WLW. The orchestra opens the program, playing "Say It With Music," the choir contributes "White Christmas," followed by "This Is the Army," by the orchestra; "Always," sung by the contralto Maxine; "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," played by Evelyn on her magic violin; "Alexander's Ragtime Band," featuring the two pianos with the orchestra in a special Ross Lind arrangement; "All Alone," sung by the soprano Vivian; and the hymn of the evening, "I'll Be Somewhere Listening." This all-Berlin program supplements the musical numbers originally planned for the broadcast from Fort Myer.

MICHAEL O'SHEA

Michael O'Shea, who went from radio to the Broadway hit "The Eve of St. Mark," and then went on to Hollywood for a starring role in his first picture, "Lady of Burlesque," returns to the "Radio Reader's Digest" in a heart-wrenching story of a father faced with an important, unpleasant decision, in "Bill's Little Girl," on Sunday, May 9, at 8 p. m., over station WBNS. As Bill, O'Shea enacts the role of the father of a little girl who discovers, after his wife's death, that he is the victim of an incurable disease, and must provide for the girl's adoption before his death. "Bill's Little Girl" replaces O'Shea's previously announced vehicle, "Tales from the Big House," Conrad Nagel is master of ceremonies; Don Bryan, music director.

RADIO BRIEFS

Sammy Kaye's boys in the orchestra recently teamed up against some youngsters for a little Spring baseball. Not only did the youngsters trim with a few home runs, but left them with some pretty stiff muscles which didn't make rehearsals very easy for their Wednesday night show.

The surprise appearance of Cary Grant to make a bond selling talk in the Radio Theatre last week brought complications. When he left the theatre in company with Rita Hayworth and Mr. and Mrs.

William Powell there were approximately a thousand fans clustered around the stage door. The group made one attempt to get out, but were immediately forced back by sheer numbers. They had to wait in the theatre until the crowd had cleared somewhat.

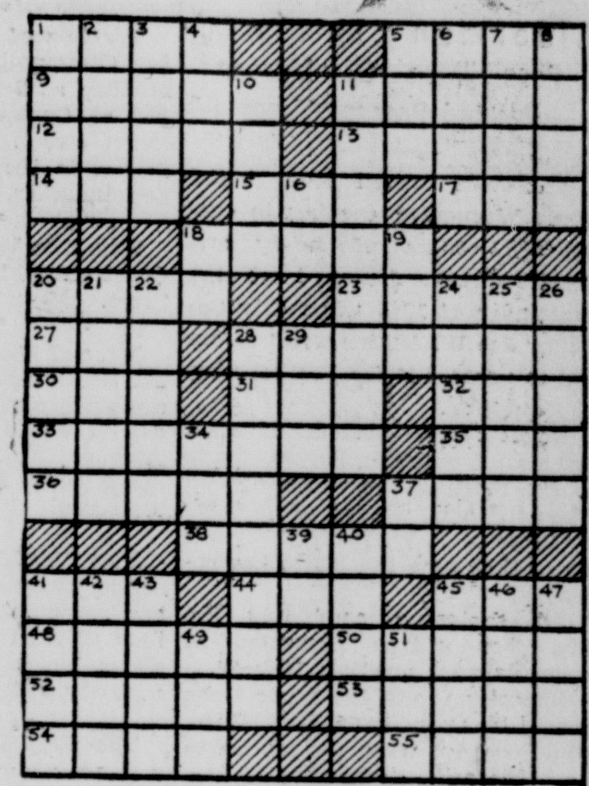

Sign of the Times Dept.: At a dinner before his appearance on "The Man Behind the Gun" program, heard Sunday nights at 9:30 over CBS, Bill Quinn, actor, discovered he hadn't room for all the portion of meat served him. Bill carefully wrapped the remaining meat up in a napkin and took it to the broadcast with him.

Paul Sullivan, news commentator who is filling in for Raymond Clapper on Mondays and Thursdays at 9 p. m. over Mutual, has a gravel patch he's turning into a Victory Garden. Sullivan discovered after a little patient digging there was a sandy soil beneath and with the addition of a little fertilizer it was rich enough to grow most vegetables.

COUNCIL MOVES TO CONSOLIDATE TWO CITY POSTS

Clarence Helvering Slated To Fill Service And Safety Jobs

PERMANENCY CONSIDERED

Aldermen Investigating Possibilities Of Merger Beyond Present Term

Circleville council took initial steps Wednesday evening to consolidate offices of safety and service director for at least the remainder of 1943 when City Solicitor Joe W. Adkins was instructed to prepare legislation covering the question.

Request for official sanction for such a consolidation was made at the meeting two weeks ago by Mayor Ben H. Gordon after Safety Director E. W. Weiler resigned. Since that time the office has remained vacant.

An ordinance combining the two jobs will be presented at council's next meeting May 19.

Opposition to the move was voiced by Councilman Boyd Horn, who dissented when the motion to have the solicitor prepare legislation was put to a vote. Horn's opposition was expressed in a few words: "I'm against it."

Helvering Favored

Mayor Gordon is expected to appoint Service Director Clarence Helvering to serve also as safety chief, with health office duties added. Helvering now receives $1,500 annually for his service director's work. Under the plan proposed by George L. Crites, who headed a committee considering the consolidation of the offices, the combined jobs would pay $1,800, representing a $300 increase for Mr. Helvering and a saving of $600 for the city over an annual period.

Safety director, who supervises police and fire departments, Berger hospital and city relief cases, has been receiving $600 for this work plus $300 for serving as health officer.

May Be Considered

Council is continuing consideration of a move to keep the service and safety jobs combined even after January 1, 1944, but has not yet taken any definite steps. President John C. Goeller named Councilman Crites, Ed Wallace and J. Donald Mason to meet with the county commissioners to discuss possible consolidation of city and county health offices. The move, some councilmen believe, would boost efficiency locally so far as health work is concerned and would also be done at a savings. Dr. A. D. Blackburn has requested that he be considered for the combined health office job. He has been given permission by the county health board to fill the Circleville job if it should be offered to him.

COUNCIL TURNS ATTENTION TO HOSPITAL NEEDS

Council devoted much of its Wednesday evening session to Berger hospital, its finances, needed improvements there and other matters concerning the institution which is now nearing the end of its thirteenth year as one of the city's leading institutions.

Financial report for April, submitted by Mrs. Bess J. Kochheiser, was one of the most favorable the institution has had in a long while. During April the hospital proved to be self-sustaining with collections passing expenditures by $20. At other times collections have been ahead of expenditures, but council, considering high cost of feeding patients and other expenses which have increased with the war, was highly pleased.

During the month the hospital collected $2,821.41 and paid out $2,802.83.

There were 11 patients in the hospital April 1, 65 were admitted, 69 treated, 57 discharged, 15 births were reported, four deaths listed, nine operations and 472 days of care.

Expenses included provisions $334.15, laundry $187.35, fuel and light $100.98, medical and surgical supplies $346.78, employees' salaries $1,550.05, superintendent's salary $145, other supplies $128.77 and repairs $9.75.

Solicitor Joe W. Adkins reported to council concerning a meeting with the medical advisory committee of the hospital in which numerous recommendations were made concerning improvements.

New linen is needed to replace supplies bought when the hospital was opened in 1930, paint is needed inside and out, a new boiler is needed, in addition to a stoker, and a new x-ray machine will soon be necessary.

The solicitor urged councilmen to take a more personal interest in the hospital, declaring that up to the last few months city officials had let the hospital operate itself.

The city official told council that the city will soon receive approximately $15,000 from the Elizabeth Ruggles estate for hospital purposes. Part of this money can be put into improvements at the hospital, while the remainder will be put into government bonds to help provide a building program, if the recommendation of the physicians is followed. The doctors advised that $10,000 be put into a building fund, pointing out that some day building will be necessary there.

COUNCIL MOVES TO CONSOLIDATE TWO CITY POSTS

Clarence Helvering Slated To Fill Service And Safety Jobs

PERMANENCY CONSIDERED

Aldermen Investigating Possibilities Of Merger Beyond Present Term

Circleville council took initial steps Wednesday evening to consolidate offices of safety and service director for at least the remainder of 1943 when City Solicitor Joe W. Adkins was instructed to prepare legislation covering the question.

Request for official sanction for such a consolidation was made at the meeting two weeks ago by Mayor Ben H. Gordon after Safety Director E. W. Weiler resigned. Since that time the office has remained vacant.

An ordinance combining the two jobs will be presented at council's next meeting May 19.

Opposition to the move was voiced by Councilman Boyd Horn, who dissented when the motion to have the solicitor prepare legislation was put to a vote. Horn's opposition was expressed in a few words: "I'm against it."

Helvering Favored

Mayor Gordon is expected to appoint Service Director Clarence Helvering to serve also as safety chief, with health office duties added. Helvering now receives $1,500 annually for his service director's work. Under the plan proposed by George L. Crites, who headed a committee considering the consolidation of the offices, the combined jobs would pay $1,800, representing a $300 increase for Mr. Helvering and a saving of $600 for the city over an annual period.

Safety director, who supervises police and fire departments, Berger hospital and city relief cases, has been receiving $600 for this work plus $300 for serving as health officer.

Mr. Helvering will likely be named acting service-safety director by the mayor pending movement of the legislation through council and will take over the job officially when the ordinance is finally passed.

May Be Considered

Council is continuing consideration of a move to keep the service and safety jobs combined even after January 1, 1944, but has not yet taken any definite steps. President John C. Goeller named Councilman Crites, Ed Wallace and J. Donald Mason to meet with the county commissioners to discuss possible consolidation of city and county health offices. The move, some councilmen believe, would boost efficiency locally so far as health work is concerned and would also be done at a savings. Dr. A. D. Blackburn has requested that he be considered for the combined health office job. He has been given permission by the county health board to fill the Circleville job if it should be offered to him.

COUNCIL TURNS ATTENTION TO HOSPITAL NEEDS

Council devoted much of its Wednesday evening session to Berger hospital, its finances, needed improvements there and other matters concerning the institution which is now nearing the end of its thirteenth year as one of the city's leading institutions.

Financial report for April, submitted by Mrs. Bess J. Kochheiser, was one of the most favorable the institution has had in a long while. During April the hospital proved to be self-sustaining with collections passing expenditures by $20. At other times collections have been ahead of expenditures, but council, considering high cost of feeding patients and other expenses which have increased with the war, was highly pleased.

During the month the hospital collected $2,821.41 and paid out $2,802.83.

There were 11 patients in the hospital April 1, 65 were admitted, 69 treated, 57 discharged, 15 births were reported, four deaths listed, nine operations and 472 days of care.

Expenses included provisions $334.15, laundry $187.35, fuel and light $100.98, medical and surgical supplies $346.78, employees' salaries $1,550.05, superintendent's salary $145, other supplies $128.77 and repairs $9.75.

Solicitor Joe W. Adkins reported to council concerning a meeting with the medical advisory committee of the hospital in which numerous recommendations were made concerning improvements.

New linen is needed to replace supplies bought when the hospital was opened in 1930, paint is needed inside and out, a new boiler is needed, in addition to a stoker, and a new x-ray machine will soon be necessary.

The solicitor urged councilmen to take a more personal interest in the hospital, declaring that up to the last few months city officials had let the hospital operate itself.

The city official told council that the city will soon receive approximately $15,000 from the Elizabeth Ruggles estate for hospital purposes. Part of this money can be put into improvements at the hospital, while the remainder will be put into government bonds to help provide a building program, if the recommendation of the physicians is followed. The doctors advised that $10,000 be put into a building fund, pointing out that some day building will be necessary there.
